

K. EDUCATOR'S YEAR-END SUMMARY (by May 1)

Summarize your progress toward achieving your stated goal(s). Attach additional pages as needed.
I met some of the goals I set out for this year but there is always room for improvement.

Our monthly PLC meetings were very rewarding to adding to the instructional activities that I had in my files for meeting the needs of student on both ends of the spectrum (struggling students/TAG students)

I felt like we hit cyber safety pretty good with the upper grades and I have a lot of room for improvement next year with the lower grades. The availability of the computer lab for teaching seem to lead itself to wondering why teach cyber safety is the lab is not available for regular use.

We did introduce our upper grade students to a variety of web 2.0 tools this year and I feel good about that.

L. SUPERVISOR'S YEAR-END SUMMARY (by May 1)

This summary addresses the educator's progress toward achieving the stated goal(s) contained in the current year's Professional Development Plan.

Diana worked hard this year and providing differentiated technology lessons to better meet students at their learning needs - as the discrepancy in skills & background knowledge is quite large in the upper grades.

Additionally, her PLC meetings with other Library Media specialist added tools to her toolbox. She was able to implement many of those ideas with success.

When walking through the library and/or on quick visits, Diana would pull me aside and explain what the students were working on - she'd enthusiastically email their project work to me - and generally kept me in the loop on the exciting things that were happening in there.

Overall, Diana has successfully met the requirements laid out in her 2010-11 Professional Development Plan.
